FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Gary Doyle Named Food Bank Chief Financial Officer

PITTSBURGH, PA (Wednesday, January 12, 2022) – Gary Doyle has been named Chief Financial Officer at Greater Pittsburgh Community Food Bank. Mr. Doyle replaces Bart Huchel, who is retiring at the end of January.

“We are thrilled to have Gary join our executive leadership team at the Food Bank,” Lisa Scales, president and CEO of the Food Bank said. “With more than 30 years of experience in operational and financial stewardship, and significant involvement in the nonprofit sector, Gary’s background aligns with our organizational needs and strategies.”

In his position, Mr. Doyle oversees all finance, accounting, treasury and information technology functions at the Food Bank.

“The Food Bank has a long history of guiding the generosity of the Pittsburgh region into programs that serve our neighbors during times of food insecurity, Mr. Doyle said. “I am proud to join such a great organization and look forward to working with the employees and volunteers who support those efforts.”

Mr. Doyle is a Certified Public Accountant with an MBA in Finance from Robert Morris University and a BS in Accounting from Mount Saint Mary’s University. He has served on the board of directors for a number of Pittsburgh area nonprofits including Central Catholic High School, The Neighborhood Academy, The Ireland Institute of Pittsburgh and Committee for the Prevention of Child Abuse.
