

Greater Pittsburgh Community Food Bank works to host each Food Distribution as planned. When the weather creates a health or safety risk, distributions may need to be cancelled.

This may happen when:

- Inclement weather, such as snow, thunderstorms, extreme temperatures, wind advisories, or anything that would prevent staff and volunteers from safely traveling to and/or executing a distribution is forecast
- Weather conditions that prevent the safe loading, transportation, or delivery of food from our Duquesne warehouse to the event location
- The location hosting the event is closed for any reason.

Due to scheduling and operational restrictions, distributions will not be rescheduled if they are cancelled due to inclement weather. Please be sure to check our website, social media (optional: link all social media outlets here), or call 833-822-7627 for the latest updates if you think a distribution may be cancelled.
